Lack of emotion is an obvious advantage for AI-powered traders. Humans are notoriously bad at stock trading for the simple reason that their emotions get the better of them. Stocks plummet and they sell out of panic.

The system is fully automatical.

Automated trading systems utilize computer programs to follow an investment strategy to create buy and sell orders on stock markets and other exchanges. The algorithm will make the trades based on predetermined rules from technical indicators or more advanced computations.

If the bot doesn't lose any trades in this kind of trading month, the trader could potentially earn 25% each month for an all-in strategy. This means that an account with $10,000 will earn up to $2,500. We are using the Quantum AI technology in order to analyze the market.
